The Green and the White

"OUR STRONG BAND CAN NE'ER BE BROKEN" . . . When we entered Cass in 1960, we looked more like a bunch of frightened children than a strong band. We were scared, too, because this was a big step we were taking. Some of us regretted it almost immediately. We called ourselves stupid to leave the security of our neighborhood high schools and come to a place where we knew one person out of a thousand. We clung stubbornly to the few who came from the same area we did, and we avoided the others deliberately. In a burst of rebellion, we vowed to transfer at the first opportunity, and some of us did. The ones who stayed, soon found a stronger, more closely-knit unity in the student body at Cass than would have been possible at a school where one goes not out of choice, but out of obligation. We discovered that for the most part, we had much in common with these new acquaintances of different backgrounds and beliefs. We came to be proud of ourselves for the adult way in which we accepted others as they were, and because we were finally learning to be ourselves.

"SURELY IT CAN NEVER DIE" . . . And will we ever let it die? Could we ever forget the football games where we screamed ourselves hoarse, the bitter disappointment of losing and the unsurpassed exultation of emerging the victors and happily thumbing our noses at the apponents? How could memories of crowded elevators, cold lunches, noisy pep-rallies, and student elections ever fade away? Won't we always recall tardy excuses, going to bed at 3:00 A.M., waiting in the cold for buses or cramming eight kids into the back of a Falcon? What about the Junior-Maybee picnic at Belle Isle and the boy who fell into the Detroit River, or the Junior-Maybee Dance when we really "let ourselves go" and had a "blast"? How can anyone with one millimeter of sentiment possibly forget all this, and more, which made up our four years at Cass? No one can, and no one will, for it is forever engraved in our minds, shining clearly through a mass of memories.

"FAR SURPASSING WEALTH UNSPOKEN" . . . We have learned a different set of values here at Cass. Within these walls, which we have often jokingly wished would crumble, we have grown and matured. We were thrown in, unprepared, to meet thousands of others from all walks of life, and we learned to walk one road together. We acknowledged ancestry, religion, color — some of us referred to each other openly by crude synonyms of our races, but the references were always made to our faces in such a manner that we knew nothing was meant but a brusque fondness and a mutual respect. We learned more than the value of a dollar or the solution to an equation in the big CT. We found that society draws a line between classes, and we discovered that line to be superficial. By our senior year, we were too adult to take such terms as "grease" or soche" seriously. We looked inside our "opposites" and saw mirrors of ourselves there. We accepted these people on equal terms, and in doing so, learned to think for ourselves — one of the greatest lessons we were taught, and one we shall not forget soon.

"EVER SEALED BY FRIENDSHIP'S TIE" . . . It was hard to become friendly with anyone in our freshman and sophomore years. We found that our closest friends usually lived across the city from us, and as none of us drove, distance became an obstacle. We managed to keep the relationships strong until our junior year when we received driving licenses and later curfews. This was the year when we began to understand our friends better. We saw more of them socially. We learned what their parents and family life were like. We beban to see why they had turned out as they had. We knew then, more than ever before, how to help them in whatever way we could.

Could anyone ever forget each Christmas season and the last day before Christmas vocation? It was at Cass that we found the true Christmas spirit. Hovering in the air was always the delicious mood of "peace on earth, good will to men." Teachers became more congenial, boys lost their carefully-cultured dignity and threw snowballs with the childish abandon that they tried to hide all year 'round. Girls giggled delightedly at the boys and some even joined in the snowball fights, and in the eyes of all was a glow of warmth towards one another. Gifts were exchanged with exclamations of joy, surprise, and, "Oh, you shouldn't have!" The corridors of our school were bright with promises of lasting friendship and sincere good wishes for the new year and all the years to come.

. . . And, suddenly it is gone. The four years are over, with a finality and a hushed silence that seems to somehow echo the tears and laughter we have found in all that time. We are left with hands empty of Algebra books and bus cards, but with hearts full of love and gratitude for the many lessons we have learned within the security of those eight floors. We are afraid to face the world, and yet we know we cannot possibly fail with the education we have received. We square our shoulders, put up our chins, and march out to meet our futures.

Jaynie Williams
Class of June, 1964

And so it ends . . .
With a swirl of crimson agony,
And yet a surge of impatience and hope,
We call it gone forever.
Time stops for no one
Nor will it return.
We cannot recall pleasures once enjoyed
Or sorrows deliciously shared.
We can only remember —
and be thankful —
for what once was,
And it remains always a thing of beauty,
shining among our most treasured
Memories.

Retirees

Eleanor Takken

Walter Sprague

Mrs. Takken is retiring from Cass after twenty-six years of teaching in the language department. She attended Wayne State University where she earned her bachelor's and master's degrees and also twenty-four hours of graduate study. Although she began teaching in 1932, she did not join the faculty of Cass until six years later.

Mrs. Takken is enthusiastic about all types of outdoor sports. Highest on her list of favorites ranks tennis and swimming. Having spent her childhood by the seaside, she is particularly fond of swimming. She is an avid reader, although, up until now, she has not been able to devote as much time to reading as she would like. Mrs. Takken is contemplating a cruise down the Mediterranean and would like to see Greece, lower Italy, Spain, and Egypt later on.

Mrs. Takken greatly admires the students of Cass Tech. She feels they behave in a mannerly fashion and possess more maturity than students of neighborhood high schools. Most especially, she is impressed with their matter-of-fact acceptance of different races, and the understanding that exists between those of differing backgrounds and beliefs. She finds the teachers, on the whole, more dedicated than those she has seen in other schools. Mrs. Takken says teaching at Cass has been one of the proudest accomplishments of her life.

Mr. Walter Sprague, math department teacher, is retiring this June after 47 years of service to the Detroit Public School System. He has been at Cass for 42 of those years, teaching algebra, senior math and geometry.

The retiree's biggest interest and hobby is all sports. He enjoys following all teams, especially the Tigers. He keeps his classes informed of all sports events and happenings.

After his retirement, Mr. Sprague hopes to travel around the world with his wife. They possibly hope to live in England for one year or so.

Claiming he was the only graduate of Brown University to ever teach in the Detroit Public School System, Mr. Sprague has made many friendships from his teacher-student relations.

Speaking of the students of today, he stated that he felt there was no fundamental difference from the students when he went to school. He feels the difference lays in the fact that the students now have a more flexible education and more job opportunities offered to them.

Administration

Your high school yearbook holds within its contents, in picture book form, the story of your high school years. This is the real purpose of the publication. It reminds you of the many friendships formed. Happy occasions and important events experienced were registered in your memory. Some teachers are remembered for their sympathetic understanding, others for their contribution to your wealth of knowledge and wisdom.

Yes! They were trying years but you wouldn't have missed them for anything in the world and they will be remembered in the TRIANGLE prepared and published by the efforts of your class members. The efforts of the yearbook staff were fulfilled in producing the finest and most complete record of the current roster of pupils, especially of the January and June graduates of 1964.

To the sponsor and staff my thanks and appreciation for a job well done, a production that will be treasured by each of you over the years to come.

The Cass Art Department prepares the talented student for many different art careers. In the Art Curriculum, English, languages, mathematics, social studies, and science are combined with a wide variety of art courses that lead to a college preparatory diploma. Some of the art graduates immediately begin work in some art field, but a larger number continue their studies in art schools and in the art departments of colleges; often they receive advanced credit for some of the art courses taken at Cass. Eventually, most graduates find a career in commercial art, fine arts, crafts, industrial design, interior design, display, art teaching, art museums and other highly specialized art areas.

In the tenth and eleventh grades, foundation courses are taken by all art students. These include: color and design, freehand drawing, lettering, watercolor, life drawing and art history. In the twelfth grade, specialized work is offered in poster, pen and ink, printmaking, costume illustration, jewelry and crafts.

The large number of prizes and scholarships awarded to Cass art students each year is a good indication of the thorough preparation the student in this Curriculum receives.

The Astronautics Curriculum aims to provide the student with an education that will prepare him for college or for employment in the aeronautical industry. In addition to a full academic program, the curriculum covers the technical and practical aspects of hand tools, aircraft engines, airframes, aerodynamics, instruments and navigation.

The Automotive Technology Curriculum provides the student with a specialized technical education. Academic and laboratory training is included in the curriculum. In the laboratory training is given in the practical and technical aspects of hand tools, engines, instruments, analyzers, and automotive servicing. Graduates are ready to enter college or be employed in industry on a technical level.

The Refrigeration and Air Conditioning Curriculum provides training that will prepare the student for college or entrance into a field that has grown into a major industry. The student receives a good foundation in the academic subjects and gains experience in construction, installation and servicing of domestic, commercial, and industrial air conditioning and refrigeration units.

The Driver Training program is designed to develop competent, safety conscious drivers adjusted to the problems of today's driving requirements.

The Science-Engineering Technology Curriculum was designed for those students who are interested in becoming mechanical, industrial and tool engineers or technicians. The curriculum provides excellent training for people to meet the challenge of the Automation-age. In addition to a good foundation in math, chemistry, physics and English, students gain experience in industrial machines, industrial hydraulics, electronics, automation technology, materials and processes, drafting and industrial management.

The Design and Drafting Technology Curriculum has been developed for those who are interested in becoming engineers, designers or draftsmen. The curriculum provides opportunities for a student to specialize in three areas: Product Design, Body Styling and Tool-Die Design. Correlated with the drafting students' background in such areas as industrial electronics, hydraulics, industrial machines, materials and processes, math and science.

The Architectural, Civil and Construction Technology Curriculum provides experience for young men and women planning careers in architectural engineering, civil engineering and general construction. The curriculum provides the student with study in architectural design and drafting, surveying, heating and ventilation, plumbing, construction methods and materials, in addition to a rich academic program.

The curriculum was set up to provide for students unable to attend college as well as those who expect to continue their education. Those students unable to attend college are able to find work as helpers to experienced journeymen or they make excellent apprentice students. Our electrical courses consist of lectures and laboratory work applying the information learned to actual electrical installations. Much time is spent on the national city Electrical Codes that govern the methods of installing electrical equipment. Numerous catalogs, trade journals, and current literature is introduced in the class discussion and becomes a part of each student's library.

For those able to attend college our graduates are most welcome to go to the college of their choice. Many of our students have attained outstanding scholastic records in the various engineering colleges. To name a few Michigan, Michigan State, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology have been very eager to get our students. For those students wishing to further their educations but not on a college level there are several schools in the Detroit area always ready and willing to interview our graduates and accept them for training and jobs on the technician level.

The Graphic Arts Curriculum is organized to prepare young men for entrance into the printing industry on technical level. It provides an opportunity for developing a broad knowledge and experience in the standard printing processes which are necessary for entrance and advancement in the various branches of printing.

In order to more fully meet the needs of the students enrolled in Graphic Arts, as well as, the trend in the industry, a new curriculum has been developed which will provide basic instruction and practical experience in all phases of offset lithography. Students will progress through carefully graded lessons and have experience with the camera, both black and white and color, as well as, an opportunity to develop basic skills in offset press-work.

As this new curriculum is perfected, we will have the assistance of our Printing Advisory Committee composed of eleven men representing all segments of graphic arts.

The Home Economics Curriculum provides an opportunity for students to specialize in one of the following, Clothing and Textiles, Family and Community Services, Foods and Nutrition, and Health and Welfare. In addition to this technical training, all students receive a well rounded academic background which meets college requirements and would make it possible for a student to finish their education in a professional career of their choice.

Home Economics is an excellent foundation for all aspects of clothing and design, counseling, food service, home service, decoration, nursing and the health services, research, retailing, social work, and teaching.

Immediate employment is available in all service areas of child care and household management, retailing, doctor and dentist offices, hospitals and laboratories.

The musical experience afforded students at Cass is scarcely equalled in any school in this country. Graduates of the Cass music department have distinguished themselves as performers and teachers and many now occupy envious positions professionally. The performance standards in our top musical ensembles have served as musical beacons for many departments around the country.

The purpose of the Performing Arts Department is to train students who wish to specialize in interpretative reading, radio and television, discussion and debate, public speaking, speech science and theatre. Some of our graduates are doing outstanding work in theatre and related fields because of their preparation at Cass.

The strength of this curriculum is evidenced by the outstanding production being performed by our students.

Concerned about the cost of college?

This will help.

If you are planning to go to college, this folder is "must" reading for you and your parents. It has a checklist of personal expenses to help you plan your college budget. And it tells how National Bank of Detroit's College Loan Plan can provide money for up to four years of college with as long as six years to repay in monthly instalments.

To get your copy of "Financing a College Education," call WO 5-6000 and ask for "College Plan" or write . . .

The Science Curriculum at Cass is designed to prepare students for some type of career related to science. Many of our graduates have become medical doctors, dentists, teachers, research scientists of many varieties, metallurgists, physicists, and technicians. A student who graduates from this curriculum with good grades is qualified to pursue scientific work at any college or to enter industry as a technician. This latter category is important since a portion of our students find it financially desirable to obtain employment for a year or so immediately after high school. Industry finds that it is an advantage to hire our graduates, since they have acquired enough laboratory skills and theoretical knowledge to work in control laboratories.

The courses offered are not easy, but they do challenge the student, and if the student accepts the challenge, he is afforded an excellent opportunity to develop his talents in the scientific field.

Science and Arts

Geraldine Dolan
Curriculum Head

The Science and Arts Curriculum is an honors program especially planned for academically gifted students. The students eligible for the program are identified by the Division of Instructional Research on the basis of tests administered in the eighth grade.

To achieve its goal of providing a stimulating, challenging high school experience for these students the curriculum includes enriched classes in English, history and mathematics, and the opportunity to elect additional courses in language, science, literature, and the social sciences. Although the primary purpose of the curriculum is academic, students are expected to elect a sequence of at least three courses from one of the other curriculums.

The program is not designed for acceleration, all students are expected to complete the usual four years of high school.

Sportsmanship Code

We consider all athletes as our guests. We will accept all decisions of the officials. We do not utter abusive or irritating remarks to rattle an opposing player. We applaud opponents who make good plays; or show good sportsmanship. We strive to win fairly without boasting and lose without excuses. We ask that all players and fans help us live up to this code and so — "May the Best Team Win."

Editor's Farewell

by Cyndi Chmura

Four years at one schol, in comparison to a lifetime, is but a drop in the bucket. Yet the four years we spend in high school, as we have been told countless times, are the most important years of our lives. These years at Cass have prepared us for our future endeavors. This preparation has been both scholastic and social. It seems strange that many of us seniors haven't noticed the change which has come over the majority of us until this year.

Scholastically, we recognize the change when we've been able to aid an indignant junior with his Chemistry I valences, a frustrated sophomore with his geometry, or a forlorn freshman with the rules of playing volley ball. Those were the days when the only things to get nerve rashes over were ten-question algebra quizzes and expository paragraphs for English courses. Now our worries have jumped to five-thousand word term papers and solving identities in Senior Math.

The social change that has occurred among us is one that, I hope, we have all begun to appreciate. When we first entered CT, the one thing most of us lacked was a crowd to belong to. After all, most of us had left our best friends at our neighborhood high schools. We had to find a crowd and ideals to which we could conform. Thus, the grease, soche, nookworm, class "brown," and beatnik were created as classifications. This took place during our freshman and sophomore years.

By the time Fall, 1962, our junior year, arrived, our crowds had become closer units and competition seemed to sprout up between the various groups. We established headquarters for the units and anyone who, so very boldly, tried to eavesdrop on a "hangout" of the other crowd was left in the cold. Summer, 1963 came, and we were all looking forward to our big senior year. Something strange happened over that summer. When we returned in the fall, we found the group bitterness that had been established was gone. The grease were found to be going to soche parties and there were even some of these two crowds dating. We found the bookworm taking his notes from his reading once in a while, the beatnik wearing knoesocks, and the class "brown" letting others recite. Slowly, but surely, we were beginning to unite, and, by the time January, 1964 rolled around, we were ready and proud to take the title of the graduating class of June, 1964.

During the first few weeks of our statue, we exercised our intelligence by electing our class officers. We then went on to elect those whom we thought were the handsomest, most athletic, most popular, etc., in our mock elections. Will we ever forget the boy who was honored with the title of best-dressed girl from his senior homeroom? Or the puny kid who was elected to the post of most athletic boy? Or the poster parties that lasted for forty-five minutes and the parties that followed for the next four hours? How about the senior skits and Mr. Bracciano watching the shaving cream being thrown all over the stage? Or the victory parties. Our extra cup of coffee when the excused tardy bell coffee will always be remembered. And the confetti in our mouths at the football games? And the oddity of seeing our faculty members in gym togs at the Basketbrawl? And the Junior-Maybee Dance, at which the president of our graduating class posed as St. Nick and one of our lettermen as the feminine Christmas Carol?

I hope these and other memories will be rekindled as you glance through the Triangle years from now, and recognize faces that were once a part of your daily life.

Although our graduating class and that of January has been jeopardized because of the elimination of a few pages of the yearbook, I can sincerely say that my staff and I have tried our utmost to do our best with what we had to work with.

I'd like to thank Mr. Victor Dodge for all of his inspiration, Mr. Obel for all his patience and tolerance, and my staff for obeying my every command.

To the graduating class, may God bless you and take care . . .

In Memory

The time has come at last
When we must end our sheltered life,
And with memories looking to the past,
Our thoughts race to future strife.

Now, when we look back on our years of learning,
We thank our superiors for their guidance,
And, with mellow emotions of a heart's yearning,
We pray to God for strong spiritual reliance.

And with the ending of our strong friendships,
And the first flowing of our heart-felt tears,
We remember our original courtships,
For we cannot forget those glorious years.

Yet with these final communal days,
We realize to a greater extent,
In more mature and reliable ways,
That in unity, there is strength.
